Donate to Us Now to Support Our Educational Mission

Since our establishment in 2009, CAN has been committed to improving air quality and promoting public health in Hong Kong. Clean air is essential for optimal physical and mental well-being, yet many in our community are still impacted by pollution. Our mission is to raise awareness and drive initiatives that foster a cleaner environment for everyone, in particular through education.

Over the years, we have made significant strides toward our vision of a city with clean air for all. We believe that all children and youth should have the opportunity to learn about the importance of clean air and their role as future stewards of the environment. By instilling knowledge and a sense of responsibility at a young age, we empower the next generation to be catalysts for positive change. We aim to develop a systematic clean air education programme that nurtures environmentally conscious citizens eager to tackle this critical issue.

Please consider making a donation—we hope to raise HKD500,000 and every contribution counts and helps us to promote clean air education. Thank you for your support!

CAN Invited to Collaborate with Multiple Departments and Organizations to Promote Community Participation in Climate Matters

CAN is glad to be invited by the Hong Kong Housing Society (HKHS) to collaborate with the Civil Engineering and Development Department, Buildings Department and WWF-Hong Kong in a climate community participation programme. Our CEO Patrick Fung emphasized the importance of indoor air quality (IAQ) to our health and wellbeing in today's extreme weather conditions in his closing speech at the opening ceremony.

Visit the exhibition in the HKHS Exhibition Centre, and CAN will also host a workshop to explore community air quality. Stay tuned for more updates on our social media platforms.

Advancing Well-Being: CAN Moderated IAQ and ESG Panel at WICS24

CAN moderated a session at WLAB's Inclusive Cities Summit (WICS24) on Indoor Air Quality (IAQ) and ESG Impact Assessment. We were thrilled to have the panelists from the business and technology sectors, and shared the following insights:

- Prioritization of wellness and IAQ: Post-COVID, various organizations are emphasizing IAQ as a critical component of their ESG strategies and green building initiatives;

- Stakeholder engagement and education: Collaborative efforts can enhance small and medium enterprises engagement and awareness of IAQ benefits; and
  - Data-driven improvement: Utilizing data analytics to identify patterns in IAQ complaints can accurately help organizations to identify underlying issues and take effective improvement measures.
- Prioritizing IAQ is essential to enhancing well-being and health, and large organizations play a crucial leadership role in this effort. CAN will continue this momentum by advocating for IAQ initiatives across various sectors.

Clean Air Neighborhood for Schools: Community Visit to Analyze the Air Pollution Issues Faced by Subdivided Unit Residents

The Clean Air Neighborhood for Schools Programme arrives in Sham Shui Po. Students from the Concordia Lutheran School participated in this programme to explore the impact of the conditions in subdivided housing on physical and mental health. They not only visited the community living room in Sham Shui Po but also engaged in dialogue with two residents of subdivided units.

During the community visit, the students learned about the facilities of the community living room and how it helped alleviate the burdens faced by residents of subdivided housing. They also chatted with the tenants to understand how their living environment affects their health. Stay tuned to our social media platforms for updates on other schools' participation in the programme.

Recap: Yau Ma Tei Healthy Trail Experience Day

In early November, we participated at the Yau Ma Tei Healthy Trail Experience Day organized by the Hong Kong Institute of Planners Healthy City Taskforce. We exchanged ideas with residents in the neighbourhood, who shared valuable insights about air quality and heard many kai fong expressed their view thoughts on the importance of clean air. It was great to learn that most participants were eager to exercise in a cleaner environment.
